Montréal, Québec

ADMINISTRATION

Headmistress's Address

As I write this message to you, the graduates of 1994, you are still attending classes at Sacred Heart, trying to maintain a focus on school work while thinking ahead to the end of your years here. By the time you read these words, however, you will be attending classes elsewhere, engaged in new beginnings. Your years at Sacred Heart have offered you many opportunities for expanding your horizons, for developing your gifts, for nurturing relationships. Each of you has responded differently; each has grown in a unique fashion. It is now your challenge to continue to grow, to make choices and commitments which call forth the best in yourselves. May you always find companionship along the way, and may you return often to your Sacred Heart home.

Crayolas

If there is one thing we are not short of in this class it is imagination. Everyone holds a different crayola one unique from their neighbour. Imagination is empowerment and we are all blessed with our individuality and our own color. Yet the world would be plain if we did not mix these colors together. Thank-you all for filling my five years at Sacred Heart with such awesome colors.

FUND-RAISERS

This year's fund-raisers proved to be very successful. They included bake sales, free dress days, and a school dance to only name a few events. The money collected will be donated to various charities across Montreal. We will also be helping other Sacred Heart schools and all our money will be given to our family in India.

"ASTRONAUT BRINGS KIDS DOWN TO EARTH WITH ENVIRONMENT WARNING"

This year we had the pleasure of welcoming Canada's first woman astronaut, Dr. Roberta Bondar, to our school. As the above headline taken from the Gazette, Wednesday, May 18 implies, Dr. Bondar talked to us about environmental dangers that we face in our world today. Her visit on behalf of the Friends of the Environment Foundation was greatly anticipated and much enjoyed. Many students prepared environmental projects to display. We also presented Dr. Bondar with a Sacred Heart sweatshirt and cap in memory of her visit.

I have seen the Earth from a perspective that few people will ever share. It drove home that life on our planet is very fragile.

CHRISTMAS WISHES

This year at Christmas wishes we broke with tradition. Instead of the usual offering of gifts to the faculty we chose to give of ourselves. The Christmas play was inspiring to all. As Carina Papazian, vice-president, said, "As the world unites and celebrates, it seems that the most unexpected miracles could occur at this time, where love fills every household."

DASHABUSTADD

"Welcome to Hollywood" was this year's theme for Dashabustadd. We began in the cafeteria, where we shared breakfast with faculty. At breakfast we mingled and showed our appreciation for all their encouragement. Our next stop was the Reception Room where we were entertained by the exciting Talent Show. Our journey ended on a "sunny" note when Mrs. Flynn joined us in song. The day was a complete success.

CARNIVAL '94

Sacred Heart, Loyola, Villa Maria and Q.A.A., joined together once again this year to participate in the Carnival activities. This year's activities included opening ceremonies, ski day, Recreatheque, sugaring off and the light show ball. Sugaring off changed this year and included new activities such as Sumo Wrestling, Velcro Wall, and the Human Bowling Ball.

All in all Carnival '94 Winterama was a great amount of fun.

WALK-A-THON '94

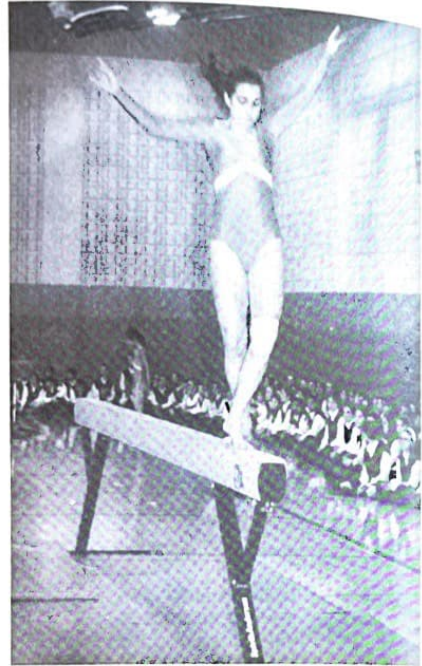

Sacred Heart, Loyola, Villa Maria and QAA students walked to the tune of "We will walk 5000 miles" this year. And that they did! It was a fun-filled day, but also a productive one. All pledges went to help Montreal's needy at Nazareth House

GYM DEMONSTRATION

The MJ Globetrotters showed us that by putting our strengths together we can do anything. The gym dem demonstrated our school's athletic abilities while entertaining us with the competition between the "nerds" and "jocks". In the end combining both of their strengths they showed us the path to success.

DRAMA PRODUCTION '94

This year's play was an adaptation of a Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber Broadway musical. As a member of the cast, I realized all the effort that is involved in mounting a stage production. However, it also proved to be an unforgettable experience.

AMASC PINS CEREMONY AND SECONDARY V ENTERTAINMENT

The Secondary V's became alumnae of the Sacred Heart when they received their AMASC pins on May 26, 1994. Mother Johnson was there to give out the pins on the momentous day. The ceremony was followed by a Hawaiian theme entertainment, hosted by the Secondary IV's. The graduates listened to some scary stories, ate some marshmallows, did the limbo, and enjoyed supper together. What had started off with a plane crash ended up being a fun-filled evening of adventure on a secluded island.

WEeping WILLOW TREE

The moon was out, the stars shone bright,
Out in the country, on a beautiful starry night.
The ground was so full of flowers, it could not be seen
By the young lovers, who walked in a dream.
The girl, whose name was Willow,
Lay her head on the boy's shoulder, using it as a pillow.
They remembered the prophesy, that harm was kept at bay,
By this enchanted garden, but only during the night, and not day.

They fell asleep, in their innocent love,
And night slipped away on the wings of a dove.
The sun rose, and still they slept,
While into the garden, the keeper crept.
He noticed the couple, as they lay in a tranquil sleep,
And the keeper knew that them he could keep.
He woke them, to say their last farewell,
As a morose robin sang, like a warning bell.
The keeper danced around and showed his mirth,
As he changed the boy into soil, and named him "Earth"
He turned to the girl, whose soul cried,
For the boy, and life, which without him she could not abide.
He named her arms branches, and rooted her feet,
She cried all the more now that she knew what fate she would meet.
Her branches bent towards the soil,
She never stopped weeping and was always loyal.
She came to be known as the weeping willow, and with each year's birth,
Her branches leaned towards the ground, forever trying to reach her beloved Earth.

PETEY'S FRIENDS

"Come on, Petey. Forget about Fred. We have to go."

"I can't forget about Fred; he's my best friend. And don't call me Petey. I'm all grown up. I'm six now!"

"You're right, Peter. But -"

"Here he is!", Petey interrupted triumphantly. Mrs. Fleming sighed inwardly as she thought about Petey's imaginary friend, Fred. She wondered if he would ever grow out of the stage. This "stage" had lasted over a year, and Petey was driving her crazy with it. Maybe things would change when he made a real friend at school, she consoled herself.

A little bit later that morning, on the way to his first day of school, Petey found himself thinking about the possibility of having another friend, one everybody could see. He was not sure if he liked the thought. Fred liked him, never did anything mean, and was always around when he needed him, but it might be interesting to have an actual person for a friend.

After a short walk, Petey and Mrs. Fleming reached the school. Mrs. Fleming was worried about whether Peter would let her leave, but he simply said, "Okay, bye Mommy."

"Bye Sweetie. See you at twelve o'clock."

Petey bravely climbed the front steps and walked into the classroom, but suddenly he turned and ran back to where his mother was still standing.

"Mommy! I don't want to go to school. No one will like me!"

"Oh, don't worry, Peter," she said as she ruffled his hair. "Come with me. I will help you to meet someone."

They walked back into the classroom together. Standing there was a little boy, crying and saying to his mother, "I won't have fun. No one wants to be my friend."

Petey looked at his mother, then at the boy, and walked over to him.

"I'll be your friend", he said quietly.

"You will? Thank you. My name is John. What's yours?"

The two boys began to chat away as if they had known each other forever. Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Clarke, John's mother, talked to each other too.

"I was worried about John", Mrs. Clarke commented. "He has an imaginary friend, Jerry, and I didn't know if he'd make any real friends."

"Same with Petey," exclaimed Mrs. Fleming, "but they're having so much fun together that I'm sure they've already forgotten about their imaginary friends," she echoed.

Across the room, Petey sat with his old friend, Fred, and his new friends, John and Jerry.
